Professional Experience

Paul studied at Auckland University graduating in 1998 with honours. He then travelled overseas gaining a position at Pascall + Watson in London and spent five years working on large infrastructure projects including the expansion of Heathrow airport. Paul also worked on a private air terminal in Abu Dhabi, a job won through a design competition.

Paul is responsible for high level liaison with client control groups and project programming and procurement. He is highly experienced in the coordination and management of project teams, ensuring a high level, timely delivery of all projects.

Since joining Architectus, Paul has played a key role in the design and delivery of a number of educational projects.
